

Natal

BRAZIL

Natal is Portuguese for 'Christmas', and the city itself is a gift – as the capital city of Rio Grande do Norte in northeastern Brazil, it is known as 'city of the sun' on account of the abundant sunshine it receives – over 3,000 hours per year.

Natal is a popular tourist destination for European and American tourists alike: the annual Festa Junina (Saint John Festival) in particular is a major draw during the month of June. Recently, the state government has placed a real emphasis upon improving tourist infrastructure and preserving the natural environment: surrounding the city is the Dune State Park, a chain of protected sand dunes, and Natal is also close to dozens of beautiful sandy beaches like Pirangi and Tibau do Sul – all accessible via the Ocean Highway that runs down Brazil's Atlantic Coast. Other good news for investors is Natal's status as the safest city in the country, according to research conducted by Brazil's Institute of Applied Economic Research.
